

3/16/2017 | Press Releases

Robert Del Greco Successfully Defends Darrelle Revis

Attorney Robert G. Del Greco Jr., defense attorney for former New York Jets cornerback Darrelle Revis, proved that his client was not the aggressor in an altercation on February 12, 2017, in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

District Judge Kevin E. Cooper Jr. dismissed all charges after Rashawn Bolton of Aliquippa, Revis' childhood friend, testified that he was the one who assaulted the two alleged victims.

Revis' attorney, Robert Del Greco Jr., said he didn't want to accuse the victims of lying. "We had varying degrees of intoxication, we had head injuries, we had assumptions, we had mischaracterizations, we had rumors, we had innuendoes and somehow all those events converged into this confluence that Darrelle Revis knocked out two guys and threatened people and robbed people," Del Greco said. "They got this all wrong, absolutely all wrong."

To get more details on this case, go to:

Mandak, Joe. (2017, March 15). All charges dismissed against ex-New York Jet Darrelle Revis. AP Sports

Ward, Paula Reed. (2017, March 15). Charges dismissed against Revis in South Side fight. Pittsburgh Post-Gazette

Greene, Leonard. (2017, March 15). Ex-Jets star Darrelle Revis sees all charges dropped in Pittsburgh assault case. New York Daily News